

Therefore, due to the LMA, Memphis has a source of popular syndicated programming, news programming specially tailored to suit the needs of the African-American community, and a venue for local sports programming, all of which the city would not otherwise receive.

Argument

The foregoing demonstrates that in each and every market an LMA produced substantial public interest benefits, many of which are of particular significance to this Commission (e.g., greatly expanded educational children's programming; the initiation of local news and public affairs programs; the creation of locally-produced programming directed at minority groups; first local service from new national networks such as UPN; increased involvement in community affairs and charitable causes; and a reduction in the number of infomercials and paid programming). These public interest benefits were the direct result of the economies of scale which arise out of LMAs, and would not have been realized in their absence.

For the foregoing reasons, Clear Channel urges the permanent grandfathering of all existing LMAs. It would be inequitable to the parties who entered into LMAs in good faith, invested substantially in them, and generated public interest benefits of the sort described above to establish any sunset date for these LMAs. Changing the rules in this manner would unfairly harm these parties by denying them a proper return on their investment. Even more significantly, however, it would jeopardize the substantial public interest benefits which flow from such relationships. Clear Channel strongly opposes the Commission's proposal to limit LMAs inconsistent with its forthcoming multiple ownership rules to their original term. This proposal is wrongheaded in that it would reward those parties who ignored the Commission's entreaties and, nevertheless, negotiated agreements with extremely long terms, and penalize those who adhered to the Commission's advice and agreed to short-term arrangements.

Finally, it should be noted that among the principal beneficiaries of LMAs are UHF stations struggling to remain viable in a highly competitive marketplace. It is well-established that UHF television stations are disadvantaged versus their VHF counterparts due to reduced coverage, inferior transmission characteristics, and higher costs of operation. These factors have made it difficult for UHF stations to produce revenue comparable to, and compete effectively with, VHF stations. The public interest is best served by the establishment of rules which will place all stations, UHF and VHF, on a level playing field on which they have equivalent opportunities to broadcast quality programming. It would contribute toward the realization of this objective for the Commission to generally permit a UHF licensee to have an attributable interest in another in-market station, UHF or VHF. This relaxation of FCC rules would improve the quality and diversity of programming as, the record shows, LMA's have done in the past.

Conclusion

Therefore, Clear Channel urges the FCC to:

- (a) permit common ownership of UHF/UHF or UHF/VHF combinations in the same market as an unconditional exception to the current duopoly rule
- (b) grandfather and allow the permanent continuation of current LMA's; and
- (c) permit licensees to enter into LMA's in the future.
